

The article «Computers for disabled» is a text about what technologies are used now to help people with disabilities to engage in work activities on a par with ordinary people. It shows what kinds of computers are exists for people with disabilities, how they work and how they help for disabled people.

The article is of great help to understand what kinds of problems people with disabilities are faced with at their working process. Also it shows how much help that technologies for this people and how important is the work of technical specialists for disabled people.