Sub: Application for a scholarship.

Dear Sir/Madam,

I hereby write to apply for the International Training Program (ITP) scholarship at MIT University for the Computer Engineering postgraduate program. I am motivated to apply for this scholarship because of its purpose to offer young professionals from unprivileged backgrounds, opportunities to engage in postgraduate education and training in specialized studies.

I completed my bachelor's degree with the help of budget allocations from the state hence I am unable to pay my postgraduate education. While at the university I gained skills in programming on many languages like Python and Javascript, developing with some frameworks, like React, React Native, Node.js and Flask, Tornado, Django, and machine learning, and also I had learning software project management and IT recruitment. Pursuing this master's will enable me to develop these skills and understand how to implement them in my community.

I wish to study at your university because of its commitment to teaching and research with the support of the sustainability of the current social model. This master's program will enable me pursue studies in software engineering to take a career as a software engineer. I aim at acquiring skills in designing high-load systems, web applications and databases, as well as in managing a team of programmers and software projects, which will be important for career advancement.

I hope that you will consider my scholarship application.

Yours Faithfully,

Galina Elkina
